

Being Salt, Light and Leaven Where You Work

— A seminar on ethics and vocation in the workplace —

Saturday 4 August 2018, 9.15am – 3.45pm
The Bishop Selwyn Chapel
Holy Trinity Cathedral, Parnell, Auckland

Purpose:

Most church programmes on the ministry of the laity aim to prepare church members for leadership in their local church. By contrast, this seminar focuses on the wider ministry of the laity as agents for change in their place of work – how to be the salt, light and leaven at the cutting edge of day-by-day mission.

During the seminar you will hear from the speakers listed below on ethical issues in their various settings. You will be encouraged to think of your own workplace and the issues that arise there. And thinking of the particular gifts you have, you will have the chance to link these gifts with the opportunities in your own work, seeing it as a calling and not just a job.

The seminar is open to all who share these concerns. Please bring a notepad for making your own personal reflections and plans during the day.

At previous seminars participants have said it gave them a whole new perspective on their personal vocation in life, work and relationships.

The Speakers:

Rod Oram, business journalist who aims to bring people's talents and resources together in a common purpose. How does faith link with these challenges?

Richard Randerson, former bishop and cathedral dean with a 50-year concern for the Church's mission in society.

Kay Hawk, education consultant who works in schools daily, believing every child in New Zealand has the right to a quality education.

Mark Powell, professional director, trained pastor and former CEO of The Warehouse Group. Mark believes business is an ideal place for using your gifting for the flourishing of others, and that ethics is a key point of connection.

Bruce Gilberd, former Bishop of Auckland; translating our own identified gifts into workplace ministry.

Fiona Miles, paediatric intensivist at Starship Hospital with interest in ethics and communication. In the face of difficult decisions, how do we maintain humanity?

Joanna Pidgeon, property lawyer, president of Auckland District Law Society and deputy chair of Auckland City Mission. How do we give back of our talents to the community, and also juggle the tensions of being a working parent?

Host and Chair: The Very Rev'd Anne Mills, Dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral, Auckland

Registration: please enrol by sending your name, email and telephone number to richardrandersonnz@gmail.com

Cost: There is a charge of $25 which includes morning tea/coffee and lunch. Please advise if you have any specific dietary requirements.

Payment may be made at the door of the Bishop Selwyn Chapel on the day, or in advance by electronic transfer to: JR & JD Randerson, 38 9001 0207186 04

Please record your name and 'Seminar' in reference data and send advice to email above.

For further information: Contact Richard Randerson at above email, or telephone (04) 976 6050.

We look forward to welcoming you to a stimulating day of conversations and reflections with others.